

Where do you start?

Where you start depends on where you left the educational system. If you didn't complete high school, read "No high school diploma." If you have a diploma or GED or have been in college before, go to "High school graduates, GED holders and former college students."

No high school diploma

If you didn't complete high school, you can:

- Take high school courses and get a high school diploma.
- Take General Educational Development (GED) classes and earn a high school equivalency diploma.
- Talk with a college admissions officer to see if you can be admitted under "ability-to-benefit" provisions.

High school courses

Some high schools welcome adults into the regular high school classroom to take the classes they need to get their high school diploma. Other school districts let adults earn diplomas through adult high schools, some of which hold classes at night, or through correspondence courses.

You may also be able to take online classes through Kentucky Virtual Adult Education (KYVAE). To be eligible, you must be at least 16 years old, not enrolled in high school and either live or work in Kentucky. You'll need a computer with Internet access and an e-mail account. If you want a free e-mail account, you can register for one at www.gohigherky.com. After you register online, someone from your county's adult education center will contact you to talk about eligibility and other free services

GED options

Many adults study for the GED tests through classes taught at local adult education centers. Adult education programs in every county are listed on pages 10–16.

To earn your GED diploma, you must pass the five GED tests that assess your knowledge of language arts/writing, language arts/reading, social studies, science and math. The official GED Tests are given by official GED test centers and are not available online.

All candidates for the GED tests must have a Kentucky mailing address, meet eligibility requirements, pass the official practice test and complete the KYAE-6 application form.

You may take the GED exam if you're at least 19 years old or at least 16 years old and have been officially withdrawn from school for 90 days as certified by the local school district.

To prepare for the GED tests, you can:

- Enroll in an adult education GED preparation class in your county. See GED Classes on pages 10–16, call Kentucky Adult Education at 502.573.5114 or visit www.kyae.ky.gov for the center nearest you.
- Enroll in "GED on TV," broadcast on Kentucky Educational Television. Call 800.538.4433 for information.

If you have a disability that requires special accommodations, contact Dr. B. J. Helton, Suite 250, 1024 Capital Center Drive, Frankfort, KY 40601, telephone 502.573.5114.

GED Testing Centers are located throughout the state. Contact your local center for test dates. See pages 16–17 for locations and telephone numbers of these centers.

High school graduates, GED holders and former college students

The admissions office of the school you plan to attend can help you get started. If the school you plan to attend has an office that serves nontraditional students, that should be the best place to go for help. (See Part III, beginning on page 63, for addresses and telephone numbers of these offices.)

You can also contact an area Educational Opportunity Center (EOC) for help with admissions and financial aid questions.

EOC and Talent Search (TS) Programs

EOC and TS programs help people who are entering or reentering college. These programs provide students with career, educational and financial aid counseling as well as encouragement and support. EOC and TS programs are funded through the U.S. Department of Education as part of the Federal TRIO Programs and offer free services to students.

- EOCs provide adults 19 and older with information about educational opportunities. EOC counselors can help with college admissions and financial aid applications, career counseling and tutoring. Financial aid forms can be filed electronically at some EOC locations, saving time and reducing errors. EOCs can also provide information about academic programs at local colleges and universities and GED programs. An EOC program can serve adults if there is no TS in the area.

- TS programs provide educational guidance, counseling and academic support services to help middle and high school students and people who haven't completed secondary or postsecondary education enter or reenter those programs. All participants must have the potential to complete secondary school and undertake postsecondary education.

Participants must be between 11 and 27. TS programs can also serve adults over age 27 if there is no EOC in the service area. A TS program provides information about admissions requirements, scholarships and other financial aid programs, and career counseling. In addition, program participants receive help with completing and submitting admissions and financial aid applications.

Four EOCs serve Kentucky, with 14 offices across the state. A complete listing, including the counties each office serves, is on page 8. There are nine TS centers in Kentucky. They are listed on page 9.
